

Tuesday, April 12th, 2011

On the second day, we had two excursions: Academia della Crusca, Pitti Palace with Boboli's Garden.

Academia Della Crusca was the first academy in Europe which had begun publishing first dictionaries.

Pitti Palace has a wonderful inclined square in front of it. The museum includes creative works of Italian artists which are the cultural heritage of XV-XVI centuries. Moreover, it has a wonderful Garden.

In the evening, we had the second meeting of the mixed groups where we started discussing the conception of the dictionary and choosing the personalities which would be presented in the final presentation.

Pic.1. Decorative backer's shovels are main symbols of Academia della Crusca.

Pic.2. TPU group in Accademia della Crusca.

Pic.3. A magnificent view of Palazzo Pitti from Boboli's Garden.

Pic.4. Group of students from all the universities participating in the workshopis sitting at the inclined square close to Palazzo Pitti.