

Annotation

Industrial practice for students in the direction 140400 - "Power and Electrical Engineering" - is part of the learning process to study the power system objects: power station, substation. During the internship, students must study the electricity generation process; operation modes of the main power equipment; basic electrical equipment, methods, measurement methods, electrical protection monitoring.

Special attention should be paid to the practical skills in their future professional activity.